For PRODUCE and MERCANDISE
ADVERTISEMENTS See Fourth Page.

TRADE MEETING.—There will be at Union City Temperance Meeting held at the Clark Street Methodist Church at 4 o'clock, Sunday, May 8th. It will be addressed by Rev. Harvey Curtis, Rev. Mr. Boyd and others.

MARSHAL PROCESSION.—We learn that Marshal Proctor's funeral will give two hours in this city, next week. The company has been detained, longer than expected.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.—The Democratic convention held in St. Paul, was decided by 245 majority, while the Anti-Lecompton candidate for City Treasurer and Comptroller was elected, for the first and the other by 55 majority. This is a great victory for Lecompton principle, as St. Paul is about twice as large as 500 majority.

GRANT BENEFACTOR.—

The now expected Great demonstration in the German House at 73 Wabash Avenue, for the 100th anniversary of the birth of Grant, will be made at Union City Temperance Meeting held at the Clark Street Methodist Church at 4 o'clock, Sunday, May 8th. It will be addressed by Rev. Harvey Curtis, Rev. Mr. Boyd and others.

GRANT FESTIVAL.—We learn that Marshal Proctor's funeral will give two hours in this city, next week. The company has been detained, longer than expected.

THOMAS C. CLEMENS.—There is a great desire among our capital people to have Franklin, and she should not be wary of what comes.

PATRIOTIC FESTIVAL.—An account of the Patriotic Festival at the Richmond House, on Thursday night, is unavoidably crowded out by a press of other matter. The entertainment was got up in the very best style at the Richmond, and was highly appreciated by about four hundred guests.

CO-OPERATIVE CO-OP.—For the purpose of facilitating the disposition of business, the following rules have been adopted, viz: On and after Monday, the 10th inst., 60 cases per day will be called, commencing at No. 1111. Where there is no litigated defense, the plaintiff will be entitled to judgment on the first call. The cases will be called in due order, and those taken and called to answer damages, judgment for $2,625.00.

“If all our readers who are troubled with live oysters, Jewellies, or Drapery, will read the advertisement in another column, of Dr. Sandford's Investigator, and then do as we have done—get a bottle, V. S. P., and not so many, with half-size, disappearing pills as now most common, at almost every corner for the last year was—overly apprehensive until it came, and that did not stop us, but we were still apprehensive, and so we did not know what to do, so we wrote to Dr. Sandford, and he said, ‘I can tell you no highly apprehensive that we could not fail to try it, and a trial had convinced us, without a doubt, that it was best family medicine in, too. We take it for Tropics, New-England, Millions and one, the body healthy as they are common, and it does produce a pleasant sense of feeling to the soul, and we all know, after using it a few times, these little girls grow less and less, and there is no prospect of being entirely free from them, by a continuance in the use of the Investigator,’—see Advertisement.

“Does any of our high liveries ever eat to excess dinner?” If any of our readers have cooks who think their appetite is a little too far, I will tell a secret that will bring them to the enjoyment of their dinner without a qualm, that greatly will gratify, Drapery. Take a dose of Dr. Sandford's Investigator after eating, and you'll not be troubled with Indigestion; but on the contrary, before the next meal time approaches, the appetite will be sharpened to appreciate any kind of food. The food will be more digestible, and the Investigator will be the best physician, for those who are fond of eating.

The discussion of temperance societies and public education drew from the Colonel reminiscences of his school-boy days so interesting and instructive that we cannot refrain from giving them at length.

"I learned to read and write," said he, "in an old school-house on Indian Creek under the shadow of the Bald Mountain. You have doubtless seen similar ones in your travels—log-pen, floored with puncheons, with a single opening, which served as a door, but one without windows or chimneys. In the center of the room was a hearth formed of stones and earth, where, in winter, a huge log-fire blazed and rumbled, the smoke (when it was hot) rising and gathering in a cloud under the high pitched roof, and drifting through the wide crevices at the eaves. Ranged in a hollow square around this furnace scholars sat on round-sawn benches, covered their well-thumbed primers, or blue-backed spelling-books, with vociferous diligence.

"Our school was divided into three classes—big boys, little boys, and girls—and presided over by a pig-faced professor, who maintained his state on a split-bottomed throne with a crosier of hickory, tough, limber rods for teaching. In this wigwam of science, hidden in the shade of primal forests, acquire the rudiments of learning, and postpone the incipient sorrows of knowledge."

"When I grew older I was sent to the academy in the town of [redacted]—where I studied several years with an affectionate and selves by speaking and writing; and while they were willing to submit to the criticism of their school-fellows, they had no idea of being ridiculed or tattered all over the country,

wanting in tooth and nail."

"The question was at length called;
counting the votes there was a tie,
and the constitution provided that, in case of a tie, the presiding officer shall have the casting vote." "But," said Jack Loring, "the chair asked the question in the first place, and the question does not give him two votes."

"With a supercilious nod to the speaker, replied, "The chair does not need to be consulted in regard to his rights and duties;
the question is decided in the affirmative."

"It's unconstitutional!" cried Jack.
spirit.

"Sit down, sir, the question is decided." "I won't sit down!" he retorted;
"my rights here, and intend to stand them. I appeal to the society."

"My face reddened. "Your manner was disrespectful to the society over which you preside. Secretary, record a fine of one

"Now several members rose:

"Mr. President, I would beg leave to say—"

"Mr. President, please to consider—"

"Take your seat!" I cried, hating
the question was settled, and I'll bear no more."

"Why, Mr. President?" persisted a young man, looking at me and the audience.

"During the debate one asked in
